MISS SHINE LEADS; MRS. DAVIS BRINGS UP A CLOSE SECOND

Close Competition Among Leading Contestants, and Rapid Rise of New Arrivals Mark Week In Campaign Progress

The next ten days of the Times-Gazette's great $3,000 campaign will be exceedingly interesting as the candidate who turns in the largest amount of money on subscriptions between Thursday, October 10th and Saturday, October 20th, at 4 p. m., will receive a special prize of $50.00 in cash.

Nothing turned in before the 11th will count on this offer, but all votes secured on the $50.00 offer will count also on the Nash Sedan and the Whippet Coach and other prizes.

In less than three more weeks the contest will be over. Think of it! You may win the $50 cash prize and one of the cars or the $480.00 Sonora Deluxe Seven radio set electrically equipped, in a handsome walnut cabinet.

If you expect to win a car you must do your best to win one of the prize ballots offered this week as no other offer as good will be made during the campaign.

The regular vote offer this week is as follows:

Twenty-five ($25.00) in subscriptions, 100,000 extra votes, $40.00 in subscriptions, 175,000 extra votes; $50.00 in subscriptions 250,000 extra votes; $60.00 in subscriptions 300,000 extra votes; and $75.00 in subscriptions 400,000 extra votes. and $100.00 in subscriptions 600,000 extra votes.

The prize ballots one in Redwood City and one outside of Redwood City, are two 75,000 extra votes, fourth two 50,000 extra votes; and fifth two 25,000 extra votes. No more prize ballots after Wednesday, the 17th.

The Leaders

This week Miss Alberta Shine of Woodside is leading the contest, with Mrs. Antone Davis of Redwood City, a close second, Alma Oneta is third, and Myra Kurtz is a close fourth. Mrs. Davis and Miss Kurtz are comparatively new candidates. As an instance of what may still be done in this campaign, there is a candidate, Mrs. A. W. Tate, wife of the county horticultural commissioner, who was only nominated three days ago and today holds fifth place and close at that. Mrs. Alice Powell is another candidate who has just begun work and is now near the top. Miss Shines phenomenal rise was made in just a few days' time.

Candidates if you have done no work for yourselves as yet, you may begin now and win the $50 in cash and enough votes to put you in top place if you start out to win. But you must work hard. Do not stop when you have secured a few subscritions, but go out determined to win, and work every spare moment.

Mrs. Knapp is still near the top and Adam Patterson has made a nice gain.

The friends of Mrs. George Hinton have given her a large number of votes.

Mrs. Steinberg of La Honda has many votes to her credit this week. Another new candidate is Mrs. Elva Halcrow of Belmont who has a splendid start in the contest.

Mrs. Amy Holmes has gained a large number of votes this week, as have Lois Stebenne, Miss Cullen and Miss Cashman. Mrs. Joe McPhillips has gained a great deal this week. The friends of Miss Sarah Ward of the Telephone Company continue to send in votes for her. Mrs. Kinkead has many friends voting for her. Mrs. Wise has come up the list a considerably and is close to the top.

The offer of prize ballots in the Times-Gazette's campaign was the means of bringing the ten fortunate winners many extra votes. The winners of these ballots will not be announced until the close of the campaign as in this way no one has any opportunity of getting a line-up on other candidates.

This week in addition to the cash prize offer, the Prize Ballots will be offered again but for smaller amounts. This weeks's offer is the best offer of the remaining weeks of the campaign, so candidates should get every subscription possible. The prize ballots will close Wednesday, the 17th and the cash offer on Saturday October 20th, at 4 p. m. Turn in all you can by next Wednesday on the prize ballots but do not forget the same subscriptions will count also on the $50.00 prize.

Members of Robinhood Circle will celebrate their annual party next Thursday evening. A fine program has been arranged which will take place at the Odd Fellows hall, and will be followed by refreshments in the banquet hall. The party will be in the nature of a Hallowe'en affair. Local Red Cross To Hold Election

The annual meeting of Redwood City Chapter American Red Cross will be held on Monday evening, October 29, in the fire house auditorium.

Committee reports of the year's accomplishments will be read and election of officers for the ensuing year will take place. Devonshire Property Reported Purchased

It was currently rumored yesterday in real estate circles that the Devonshire property at San Carlos was taken over by the Biltmore Hotel people of New York and Los Angeles and that a $3,000,000 hotel was to be erected where the club house now stands on the highest point of the tract, overlooking the entire bay region.

It is known that this big company has been after the holding for some time and is satisfied with the price and property and would close a real at once if a clear title could be secured.

If the deal goes through it will be a big boost for the peninsula for the erection of such a hotel would bring thousands of eastern tourists to the county to enjoy the sunshine and climate of this section. It would be the best advertising the county could secure.

GRADE CROSSINGS MAY BE DONE AWAY WITH

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, October 11 — Bonding the state for elimination of San Mateo county's grade crossings on state highways probably will have the endorsement of the State Highway Commission meeting here October 18.

The proposal which will appear on the ballot, November 6 as No. 17, will be outlined to the commission by Senator Roy Fellom of San Francisco, author of the measure as it passed the last session of the legislature. Fellom also wrote the arguments in favor of the proposition as they appear in the voters' pamphlet this year.

Fellom's proposal would eliminate 267 grade crossings over highways throughout California, either through construction of overhead crossings, underpasses or by rerouting. Railroads would be required to pay approximately one-half of the expense of the changes contemplated.

While the commission has not yet voiced its approval of the issue officials, it is learned that it will take action on the matter. Officials in the confidence of the administration say that a majority of the commissioners favor Fellom's proposal.

Interesting Talks Feature Meeting of Exchange Club

James Whitcomb Riley, Indianna poet and known as the Robert Burns of America, and the telephone were subjects of two interesting talks before members of the Redwood City Exchange Club at its regular meeting Tuesday evening. The former topic was handled by Clarence M. Doxsee, president of the San Mateo County Title Co., who in addition to telling some interesting incidents in the life of the great Hoosier poet, gave several selections from his writings, in a manner that not only showed his fondness for the author and his poems, but he radiated his enthusiasm to his audience. Among the poems given was Riley's "Out to Old Aunt Mary's", which without doubt found a counterpart in the lives of many present.

"The Age of Miracles" was the subject of a talk given by L. C. Brown, local manager of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., which was illustrated by pictures. A motion picture entitled, "Voices Across the Water" was also shown, in which transatlantic communication by the Bell telephone system was illustrated. Both the talk and the pictures were entertaining and instructive. Bert Smith, wire chief at the local phone office, assisted Mr. Brown and following the meeting at the University Creamery the club members and their guests were shown the local telephone exchange and the many intricate operations were explained.

The meeting Tuesday evening was presided over by Kendall Towne, vice-president, and A. J. Keney of the Redwood Hardware Co., was chairman.

Old Time Resident Dies In San Francisco

Mrs. Hannah Jane Kroeger, well known here as Mrs. Frank West, passed away in San Francisco last Thursday and was buried on Friday at Mt. Olivet cemetery at Lawndale. Funeral services were held at the Suhr undertaking parlors in San Francisco.

Mrs. Kroeger was formerly Miss Hannah Brunson, a member of a pioneer family of Mayfield. Later she married Frank West of this city and they made their home here for many years. West was the first rural mail carrier employed by the local post office and for many years made the trip daily with a horse and buggy delivering mail along the West Union road and in the Canyada. If for any reason he was unable to make the trip, the rural residents received their mail just the same as his place was ably taken by his wife. Mrs. Kroeger came to Redwood City about 33 years ago and lived here until about 8 years ago when she moved to San Francisco. After the death of her husband she remarried, her second husband being H. Fitts as Lieutenant Governor was announced a few days ago by Governor C. C. Young. News of Carnahan's elevation to the office was given out coincidentally with the Governor's statement accepting Fitts' resignation. Fitts leaves the Lieutenant Governorship following his election to the office of District Attorney of Los Angeles county.

Discovery of fossils showing that mastodons or mammoths roamed the hills of Marin county, Calif., some 250,000 years ago was announced last week by scientists of the University of California. The fossils, which were found to contain a mastodon tooth, two vertebrae, a tusk of a mastodon or a mammoth, three mastodon teeth and a horn fragment from a pre-historic bison were turned over to R. A. Stirton of the University Museum of Paleontology, and V. L. Vanderhoof, geologist and collector. The strata from which the fossils came indicated the animals lived probably a quarter of a million years ago.

Complaints made to the State division of labor of the department of industrial relations during the two years ending June 30th, last, totaled 64,356, an increase of 17,283 over the previous two years. These figures are contained in the biennial report of Will J. French, director of the department, to Governor C. C. Young. Eighty nine out of every 100 complaints are against persons failing to pay wages. In all the division handled 57,189 complaints about wage payments, 2,160 complaints against private employment agencies, 2,001 complaints about the violation of the eight-hour law for women, and 1,374 child labor complaints.

Healdsburg, Calif., is moving towards the Pacific Ocean at the rate of twenty miles per 5,000,000 years. The discovery of this movement by Prof. I. B. Clark of paleontology department of the University of California was confirmed last week by Dr. G. R. Mansfeld of the United States Geological Survey. The movement was said to be a thrust of a part of the earth's crust near Mount Diablo toward the surface in adjoining localities. At this rate of speed Healdsburg should be a Pacific seaport in 3,750,000 years.

If hog cholera is in the neighborhood, it may be advisable to confine the hogs to a relatively small area on a remote part of the farm, where the possibilities for carrying the disease to them by visitors or stray animals will be minimized.

The hog louse is common on practically every herd in the country, investigations show, and it often causes a loss from 2 to 6 per cent of the market value of the hog, besides weakening him by loss of blood so that he is more susceptible to disease.

Mr. Coolidge Visits His Boyhood School

Cincinnati Is Becoming "Air Minded"

Cincinnati is giving a lot of attention to aviation just now. The photograph shows a view of the Lunken airport there, recently dedicated, which will be one of the most complete in the world; and at the right, City Manager C. O. Sherrill, T. H. Embry and Police Chief Copeland on the occasion of the presentation to the police department of a Waco plane for the pursuit of criminals.

FARM POULTRY

BUCKWHEAT GOOD FATTENING FEED

Buckwheat is a pretty good fattening feed for turkeys. Some prefer barley and corn, however. Either barley or oats, if mixed with buttermilk and the hulls removed, would be a preferable mixture. The buckwheat has the objectionable quality of having a woody, fibrous hull which is not good feed. A mixture of all three or four would do pretty well.

Some records sent in give the costs of feeding one part ground oats with hulls removed and two parts buttermilk as being 6½ cents per pound, while the cost of feeding on equal parts ground barley, oats, and corn, with the oat and barley hulls removed and with the same relative amount of buttermilk, averaged about the same. A mixture of 200 parts corn meal, 100 parts ground oats, hulls removed, 50 parts red dog flour, 3 parts tallow, 706 parts buttermilk, averaged a cost of about 5 cents per pound.

Using equal parts ground oats and barley, hulls removed, one part beef scraps and eight parts buttermilk, the cost was shown to be 4¾ cents per pound. Of course, these costs were not figured lately, but the comparisons remain. The Cornell fattening ration of 100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds buckwheat middlings, 100 pounds oat flour, 30 pounds beef scraps, and one part charcoal, is considered, too, a very fattening ration.

Sodium Fluoride Best for Destroying Vermin

Sodium fluoride is one of the best substances to use for getting rid of chicken lice. It can be purchased at almost any drug store. It can be applied by the "pinch" method, or by mixing with four parts of talc or fine dust and using a dusting can or by making a dip. The pinch method is most commonly used. In this method the hen is held in such a way that the feathers loosen up and one pinch is applied to the head, one on the neck, two on the back, one on the breast, one below the vent, one on the tail, one on each thigh and one on the underside of each wing. This application should be repeated in about eight days so as to kill the lice that were in the egg form during the first application.

Blue ointment is usually mixed with equal portions of grease. Three pea-sized portions are rubbed into the feathers—one around the vent and the other two under each wing.

If head lice are present it is usually better to apply some lard with 10 to 20 per cent kerosene thoroughly mixed with it or with 5 per cent of carbolic acid.

Producing Capons for Consumption at Home

The matter of producing capons for home consumption has not had proper emphasis. Everyone is aware of the superiority of meat from unsexed larger animals and as a rule such male animals are never used unless operated upon. But the fact that capon meat is as superior to rooster meat as steer beef is to bull beef is not generally realized. The farmer and poultryman should not be content with a low grade food stuff when it is very easily possible to have the best. The time will come, no doubt, when we will insist on capon quality in fowls as much as we do now for steer beef.

Poultry Hints

Man has to hustle, but a hen makes money "laying around."

Sick birds should be segregated and proper remedies applied. Probably vaccination is as good a remedy and preventative as can be used.

The value of clean feed in preventing poultry disease is being realized more and more by poultrymen. All feed should be given to chicks in clean troughs or hoppers.

It is a good plan, when starting into the turkey raising business, or if in it now, to plan the production program over a period of more than one year. If this is done yards can be planned so that they may be rotated and so that the poults can be raised on fresh ground.

Poor layers have the opposite characteristics of those given to be used in the selection of breeders. They have thick, rigid pelvic bones; but two or three finger widths spans between these and the rear of the keel bone.

If a strict separation of turkeys and chickens is to be secured, as is vitally necessary for success with the former, the producer is obliged to raise his poults in confinement. In addition to the value of this method in preventing disease it also has its merits in that the poults can be given closer supervision.

* * *

Hens don't stop laying to molt. They molt when they stop laying. Of course. It's natural for them to let up on egg production, so they can grow their new winter coats.

Plymouth Rocks can be confined behind a six-foot fence, while one eight feet high will not hold a Leghorn unless it is arranged so she cannot climb up it and get on the other side. The Plymouth Rocks are more domestic and quiet and altogether more comfortable to have about a farm.

* * *

The abdomen—that part of the hen behind the legs from the rear end of the keel bone upward—should be full, but soft, and velvety, somewhat resembling the udder of a cow after milking.

Gently Hinted

The Tactful Husband—My dear, a man was shot at by a burglar, and his life was saved by a button which the bullet struck.

His Wife—Well, what about it?"

"Nothing, my dear, only the button must have been on."

In a Drug Store

A man stood at the soda counter. "What have you ready to serve?" inquired he. "I don't want anything that has to be compounded."

WATCHING THE EVENTS

Maggie—"Don't you think Tom Brown a wonderful jumper? They say he can jump almost anything." Lizzie—"Even his board bill, I hear."

Craft Suspected

"My dear," said Mr. Meekton, "you should talk over the radio every night and tell the world some of the wonderful things you say to me."

"Leonidas, look me in the eye! Are you trying for an arrangement that will enable you to shut me off as soon as you get tired of listening."—Washington Star.

They Can't

Uncle—My boy, it will pay you to be diligent in your studies. Remember what you have learned no one can take away from you.

Small Nephew—Well, they can't take from me what I haven't learned either, can they?"

Camouflaged

"One nice thing about my wife, she never gossips."

"Mine doesn't either. By the way, what does your wife call it?"

WE'D SAY IT WAS

First Autoist—"He's a careful young man I hear—never spends all the money he makes." Second Autoist—"But isn't that because he works in the mint?"

The Difference

Mrs. Nayber—Your Uncle Eli has quaint, old-fashioned ways, hasn't he?

Mrs. Hays—Yes, he persists in spitting in the kitchen stove.

Mrs. Nayber—But that's better than spitting on the floor.

Mrs. Hays—Oh, yes—but mine is an electric stove, you know.

Ladies' Things

He is one of the few males at a New Jersey coast resort, and he is having the time of his seven-year-old life playing around the hotel and its private beach.

While their children absorb sun rays and dirt, the mothers seem to do little but sit on the veranda smoking, talking and playing bridge.

The other day the seven-year-old boy happened to be near when his mother expressed a need.

"Junior," she said, "please go get mother her cigarettes and matches."

"Aw, mother," said the little man, "don't make me walk out here before everybody with those ladies' things."—New York Sun.

The Woman Driver

I like to drive with Champion Spark Plugs because I know I'll not be annoyed with engine trouble due to faulty spark plugs.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sillimanite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

Remarkable Goldfish

A trained goldfish that responds to his owner's call and that eats out of her hand is owned by Mrs. Morelle D. Brayton, Lansing, Mich. The fish—named Bill—comes swimming its fastest when Mrs. Brayton calls him. Bill will eat out of her hand and will jump out of the water at her command. He permits anyone to pick him up. Bill makes his home in a large pool with 150 other goldfish. He is eight years old and weighs a pound and a half. His unusual size is attributed by Mrs. Brayton to his living in an out-of-doors pool and to a selected and balanced diet.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, there's almost daily need of its comfort. And any night may find you very thankful there's a bottle in the house. Just a few drops, and that colic or constipation is relieved; or diarrhea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for young folks. Castoria is about the only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby, however harmless they may be to grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless, anxious night. It is always ready, always safe to use; in emergencies, or for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that Baby becomes fretful, or restless. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

A Wonderful Record

HOOVER, at 54, has behind him a record of achievements the mere catalogue of which would exceed the length of this article—one of the world's foremost mining engineers at 40, Director of the Commission for Relief in Belgium; Chairman of the Supreme Economic Council of the Allies, Director of the European Relief Council; Secretary of Commerce; Director of Mississippi flood relief—these have been a few only of Hoover's innumerable activities.

Born in Iowa in 1874, his father a blacksmith, his mother a reader in a Quaker meeting house; orphaned at 9 and brought up by relatives in Oregon; paying his own way from the age of 13 through Leland Stanford University; working with a pick in the mines; assistant in the office of a San Francsco mining engineer; at 23 manager of a large British mine in Australia; at 25 Director General of the Imperial Mines of China, a chief figure in the defense of Tientsin in the Boxer Revoluton; during the next fifteen years head of vast mining enterprises in New Zealand, India, Mexico, China, Russia and the United States, with offices in San Francisco, New York and London and recognized as the leader in his profession,—such in briefest outline was his early life.

At the outbreak of the war 175,000 men were working in the various enterprises under Hoover's direction and incidentally he never had a strke in any enterprise under his management. During the period of his mining activities he had purchased from his professional savings an abandoned mine in Burma and by 1914 had transformed it into one of the greatest mines of the world, employing 20,000 men. At the outbreak of the war the British Defence of the Realm Act forced upon him the alternative of either dumping his shares for anything he could get for them or of becoming a British citizen. Although he was offered, in addition to keeping his mine and fortune, a position in the English Cabinet and a title if he would assume British citizenship, he declined the suggestion, sacrificed his interest in the mine, and at the age of 40 plunged into that career of public service the record of which is known to all the world.

Necessary Regulation

"The Republican Party has ever been the exponent of protection to all our people from competition with lower standards of living abroad. We have always fought for tariffs designed to establish this protection from imported goods. We also have enacted restrictions upon immigration for the protection of Labor from the inflow of workers faster than we can absorb them without breaking down our wage levels.

"The Republican principle of an effective control of imported goods and of immigration has contrbuted greatly to the prosperity of our country. There is no selfishness in this defense of our standards of living. Other countries gain nothing if the high standards of America are sunk and if we are prevented from building a civilization which sets the level of hope for the entire world.

"No man will say that any immigration or tariff law is perfect. We welcome our new immigrant citizens and their great contribution to our Nation; we seek only to protect them equally with those already here." — Herbert Hoover.

"'No guarantee against poverty equal to a job for every man."—Herbert Hoover.

"Material proserity and moral progress must march together if we would make the U. S. that commonwealth so grandly conceived by its founders.—Herbert Hoover.

"Size, wealth and power alone cannot fulfill the promise of America's opportunity."—Hoover.

"Our foreign policy has one primary object, and that is peace."—Herbert Hoover.

"The Presidency is more than an administrative office. It must be the symbol of American ideals."—Hoover.

New Nash Sales Break All Records

The month of September marked up another significant production and sales record for the Nash Motors Company, with a total of 20,606 of the increasingly popular "400" Series cars placed in the hands of new Nash owners.

The record, according to official figures revealed today by the Nash sales department, is 6,176 cars over and above the number manufactured and shipped during the best previous September in Nash history, and an increase of 8,007 cars over September a year ago. Despite the fact that the month was a short one in available working days, the great Nash plants attained their highest daily production during that period to stem the unequaled tide of orders that have swept over them from every part of the country since the new series cars were introduced on June 21.

The September achievement brings the total of new "400" Series manufactured and shipped to 74,913.

"Ever since the first showing of the new Nash series in June, international demand has brought a continuous procession of new industrial and sales records for the Nash Motors Company," C. H. Bliss, sales manager, said in commenting on this period of his company's biggest success "In July the motoring public absorbed 17 884 of the "400's"—nearly 3,000 more than the number produced and marketed in the best previous July in our annals. August saw more than 22,500 of the new cars marketed— an increase of more than 4,000 over last year's peak and exactly 4,498 more cars than the best previous August in Nash history. Now business in September with but 21 1-2 working days to create the record has brought us an increase of 63 per cent over the month last year and of 42 percent over the peak September on our books.

"To meet this greatest demand ever experienced by the Nash interests, manufacturing schedules have been steadily increased, commensurate with the high quality of workmanship which is the foundation of Nash success, until production has reached a new high level of more than 1,000 cars daily. The carefully planned and skillfully executed expansion program, which makes this achievement possible, may be expected now to adequately meet our record demand."

COUNTY TRAFFIC COPS DECLARED SLACK IN DUTY

District Attorney Charges Neglect by Members of Squad

The regulation of traffic in San Mateo county was severely criticied by District Attorney Swart before the meeting of the San Mateo county supervisors Monday. Swart claimed that the traffic officers of the county are not on the highways as they are supposed to be but that they spend much of their time in "bootleg" establishments. "I would not" said Swart, "have a man in my employ who frequented these places."

The district attorney stated that in his investigations into the operation of places in the county, which he suspected of selling liquor he had learned much concerning the traffic officers of the county from undercover agents. Two members of the San Mateo traffic squad were highly praised by Swart and also by the board of supervisors. They were Traffic Officers Douglas Goulson and W. J. Riley.

Supervisor Rosalie M. Brown stated that in her frequent trips over the Bayshore road and the Skyline boulevard she has never seen a traffic officer on either of those arteries. Supervisor Hickey stated that he seldom saw an officer on the main highway.

The discussion of the traffic problem followed the reception of a letter from the state association of supervisors. In the letter an opinion was asked from the board as to its view on the advisability of the county controlling the traffic regulation or whether the board would favor having the function carried on by the state division of motor vehicles.

It was finally decided upon a suggestion by Chairman J. W. Poole that a conference should be called in the near future with the traffic officers to discuss the matter.

Graham Studies European Markets

Robert C. Graham, vice-president of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, which conducts the marketing of the Graham-Paige line overseas, sailed on the Ile de France September 28 to attend the automobile shows in Paris and London, and to make a study of conditions and potential markets throughout Europe.

Mr. Graham will be in Europe about a month, visiting France, England, Spain, Holland, Belgium and Germany, where Graham-Paige has a new assembly plant, in Berlin. In each country, he will meet gatherings of the companys regional directors, distributors and dealers.

Export shipments by Graham-Paige have been keeping pace with the factory records in the United States, the first six months of this year having exceeded the entire year of 1927. It is expected that the nine months' total will be twice the number shipped during all last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Berndtsen returned to their home here Tuesday after a visit of several months in their former home in Denmark. They were members of a party composed of the Dania Society of San Franrisco.

Fire Prevention Planned Along State Highways

(By Capitol News Bureau)

SACRAMENTO, October 11 — "In time of peace, prepare for war" is the new policy of the California state fire patrol, which, according to plans announced today will combat next summer's fires this winter.

Under a co-operative agreement signed by the State Department of Natural Resources and the State Department of Public Works, forest rangers of State Forester M B. Pratt's staff will be used by the highway department in an extensive program of roadside clearing along California's 3,000 miles of state roads.

Slash disposal and clearing of wind-falls will center chiefly along highways in mountain regions.

"By this program," declared Fred G. Stevenot, director of natural resources, "we hope to reduce the hazard along California highways to a minimum. It will mean less fire fighting and lower losses next year."

Harold Power, formerly superintendent of the local plant of the Pacific Portland Cement Co., was here this week after a trip throughout the east studying manufacturing methods of cement in various plants prior to leaving for the Philippine Islands, where he will be superintendent of the Cebu Portland Cement Co.

Redwood Boys Graduate in Friendly Indian Work Hero

Four Redwood City boys were graduated from the "Friendly Indians" into the second step of the Y. M. C. A. program for boys, the "Pioneers" on Friday evening.

This signal honor was awarded at the home of Wilbur Woodhams on Claremont street, under the auspices of the Lincoln Pioneer Club, all the members of which are graduate Friendly Indians.

The boys who graduated were Edward Hubbard, son of Mr. and H. Hubbard of Upland Drive; George Downs, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. G. Downs of 129 Stratford street; Charles Bendeich, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Bendeich of 829 Cleveland; and Gordon Leake, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Leake of 561 Ruby street.

The first part of the evening was given over to the more serious, in which Roy A. Hohberger, the local Y. M. C. A. Secretary, told the boys the significance of this step upward. At this time the boys put on the impressive ritual. At the end of this the coveted bronze Pioneer Button, with four notches cut was given each of the graduates. The significance of these notches was explained to the boys as not only meaning that they had stepped forward but that they would strive to pioneer their way in life according to the four-fold plan. The first notch signifying physical fitness; the second, intellectual alertness; the third, devotion to God; the fourth, service to others.

After the more serious part, there was a social time with games and refreshments.

The party was a project for the boys of the Lincoln Pioneer Club in geting up and handling all the details of the affair.

The officers of the Lincoln Pioneers are Harold Kniveton, chief ranger; Harry Southward, deputy ranger; Billy Dusel, recorder; and Wilbur Woodhams, treasurer.

David Stott, Walter Hilton and Eastland Britton, officers of Redwood City Lodge F. & A. M., attended the session of the Grand Lodge of California in San Francisco this week.

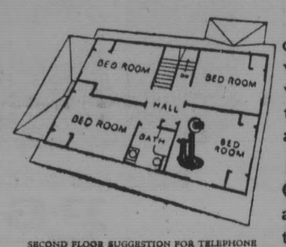
Convenience urges an Extension Telephone

Just as you appreciate running water in more than one room in the house, so you would appreciate an extension telephone. Its cost is only a few cents a day; its convenience is great, and sometimes it is even a factor in guarding the safety of your household.

FIRST FLOOR SUGGESTION FOR TELEPHONE

This home of two stories has its main telephone in the dining room and an extension in the owner's bedroom.



SECOND FLOOR SUGGESTION FOR TELEPHONE

An extension in the owner's bedroom is convenient for the housewife by day, and makes the telephone readily available by night.

The cost is very small. Call our business office and say "I want an extension telephone."

The RED LAMP

SYNOPSIS

Events of the story as set forth in the journal of William A. Porter, professor of English literature:

The professor's uncle, Horace Porter, died mysteriously at his home, Twin Hollows, now the professor's property. Jane, the professor's wife, is a psychic. She insists Uncle Horace, dead for a year, had attended his class reunion and produces a snapshot to prove her contention. Professor Cameron, interested in psychical research, inclines to the idea of psychic photography. With their niece, Edith, the Porters go to Twin Hollows for their vacation, despite Jane's reluctance. A letter Horace had been writing at the time of his death shows that he was interested in spiritualism. It hints of danger. A "red lamp" is mentioned. They take up their residence in the lodge, because of Jane's aversion to the house. Warren Halliday, in love with Edith, comes to live in the boathouse. A number of sheep are mysteriously killed in the vicinity. The slayer leaves a cabalistic sign at the scene of the killings. Greenough, a detective, arrives and Porter has a feeling that he is under suspicion.

But there was a significance in that pause of his, followed by "don't you" which has stayed with me ever since. It was almost as though, in view of Greenough's visit to him and my own questions, I had been somehow responsible for the poor old boy's death, and was seeking reassurance. . . .

One a. m. I am not able to sleep, and so, recipient of all my repressions, I come to you. I have repeated my little formula over and over, as some people count sheep. "Milton and Dryden and Pope." "Milton and Dryden and Pope," but without result. Yet I have seen whole classrooms succumb to the soporific effect of that or some similar phrase in the early hours of a bright morning.

I have even been out, in dressing gown and slippers, and wandered a way down the main road, where I was surprised by a countryman with a truckload of produce and probably recognized. If any more sheep are killed tonight!

What am I to think about this red lamp business?

Into every situation it insistently intrudes itself. It was burning when old Horace died; I had turned it on in the closed and shuttered den the day I received that curious message about the letter; Jane lights it to develop the pictures of the house for Larkin, and Nylle's sheep are killed. What is more, Jane sees a face, either outside the window or behind her in the pantry. From the moment of its entrance into the house, after eighteen years of quiet, the old stories of haunting are revived, raps are heard, footsteps wander about, and furniture appears to move.

Is Greenough right, and am I ready for the psychopathic ward of some hospital? Is this accumulation of evidence actual, or have I imagined it? And yet I am sane enough, apparently. . . .

Yet Mrs. Livingstone was most explicit this afternoon. She clearly has no nerves, being complacent with the complacence of fat rapidly gained in middle age, and no imagination. But she sat there, ignoring little Livingstone's attempts to change the subject, and soberly warned me against renting the house.

Jane's face was a study. So far I had been able to keep from her much of the local gossip about the house, and all of the talk about the red lamp. But now she heard it all, garnished and embellished, and I caught her eyes fixed on me piteously.

"Is it too late, William?" she asked "Must we rent it now?"

"It's all signed, sealed and delivered my dear," I said. "But all is not lost.

What Is More, Jane Sees a Face.

Tomorrow morning I shall take my little hatchet and smash that lamp to kingdom come."

Mrs. Livingstone took a slice of cake.

"I'm sure you have my permission," she said, "and as I gave it to your Uncle Horace, I dare say I have a right to say so."

"Perhaps you would like to have it back?"

"God forbid!" she said quickly.

"Oh, for heaven's sake," Livingstone put in irritably, "let's talk about something else. Mrs. Porter, will you show me your garden?"

I had a feeling that his wife had wanted just this, perhaps had given him some secret signal, for she settled back the moment they had gone and, so to speak, opened fire.

"I have often wondered," she said slowly, "whether you have ever considered your uncle's death as—unusual."

"You mean that you do?"

"Personally," she said, looking directly at me, "I think he was frightened to death." She hesitated. She gave me the impression of venturing on ground which was unpleasant to her. "Either that or—" She abandoned that, and began again, hurriedly.

"My husband dislikes the subject," she said. "But I will tell you why I believe what I do, and you can see what you can make of it. You remember that Mrs. Porter was not well when you both came out, the day he was found dead, and toward evening you took her home? Well, Annie Cochran would not stay alone that night, and I stayed with her. It was very—curious."

"Just what do you mean by curious?"

"That there was somebody in the house that night, or something."

"And you don't believe it was somebody?"

"I don't know what I believe," she said, rather breathlessly. "I suppose you will laugh, but I have to tell you just the same."

Stripping her narrative to the skeleton, she had been skeptical before, but that night the house had been strangely uncanny. They had sat in the kitchen with all the lights on, and at two o'clock in the morning she distinctly heard somebody walking in the hall overhead, on the second floor. Doors seemed to open and shut, and finally, on a crash from somewhere in the dining room, "like a double fist striking the table," Annie Cochran had bolted outside and stayed there. At dawn she came back, and said she had distinctly seen a ball of light floating in the room over the den, shortly after she went out.

"And was the red lamp lighted, while all this was going on?"

"That's one of the most curious things about it. It was not, when I made a round of that floor early in the evening. But it was going at dawn."

There is, of course, one thing I can do. I can meet Mr. Bethel when he arrives and lay my cards on the table. It will take all my courage; I know how I should feel if I had taken a house, and at the moment of my arrival a wild-eyed owner came to turn me away, on the ground that his house is haunted. Or, we will say, subject to inexplicable nocturnal visits. . . .

Shall I take Halliday into my confidence? I need a fresh brain on the matter, certainly. Some one who will see that the local connection of the murdered sheep with the red lamp, and so with old Horace's death, is the absurdity it must be.

July 4.

A quiet Fourth, but in spite of all precautions, more sheep were killed last night, and in fear of my life I have been expecting a visit from Greenough this morning. But perhaps old Morrison—it looked like the Morrison truck—did not recognize me last night.

But to make things more unpleasant all around, the fellow this time did not leave his infernal chalk mark! One can imagine Greenough straightening from his investigation and deciding that his recent talk with me has put me on my guard. Heigh ho!

The neighborhood is in a wild state of alarm. Public opinion appears to be divided between a demon and a dangerous lunatic at large. . . .

Otherwise, I have recovered from last night's hysteria. The cleaning of the house for Mr. Bethel beings today, and I have decided to let it go on. If on hearing my story he decides not to stay no harm will be done; if he remains, it is in order for him.

Jane said at breakfast: "Are you letting him come, William?"

"I shall tell him all I know, my dear. After that it is up to him."

"But is it? Suppose something happens to him?"

"What on earth could happen?" I inquired irritably. "He doesn't need to light that silly lamp. Anyhow, I'm going to destroy it. And as for the other matter, the sheep, the fellow is sticking to sheep, thank God."

But I am not so certain, just now, as to destroying the lamp. This is the result of a conversation with Annie Cochran, as I admitted her, armed with broom and pail, to the house this morning.

She represents, I imagine, the lowest grade of local intelligence, and I daresay she is responsible for much of the superstitious fear of the lamp. But after all, her attitude represents that of a part of the community, and if I destroy the lamp I shall undoubtedly be held responsible for any local tragedies for the next lifetime or two.

In a word, Annie Cochran not only believes that the lamp houses a demon; she believes that to smash the lamp will liberate that demon in perpetuity.

Incredible? Yet who am I to laugh at this, who have, in deference to Annie Cochran and her kind, most carefully locked away the red lamp in an attic closet of the other house, there to contain its devil unreleased. Or who am at this moment, somewhat oppressed by a so-called spirit message I have just received, forwarded to me by Cameron's secretary.

This is my first letter from the spirit world, and it comes via Salem, Ohio! It has, in Mr. Cameron's absence, been forwarded to me by his secretary.

"My dear Mr. Porter:

"In Mr. Cameron's absence on his vacation I am forwarding the enclosed message at the request of the writer, who appears to have considerable faith in our ability to locate the person for whom it is intended!

"We have had no previous correspondence with the young lady. At least I can find none in our files. But I know you will not mind my saying, in Mr. Cameron's absence, that he has always regarded these ouija board communications as purely subconscious in origin; in other words, as unconscious fraud."

The inclosed note is very long, and fully detailed. Even the arrangement of the furniture in the room is described, and the lighting of it. How she came to omit a red lamp I cannot tell; I have somehow grown to expect one! But no amount of light handling of the matter on my part can alter the fact that I am not as comfortable about the thing as I might be. The damnable accuracy of it is in itself disconcerting. The name is right, even to my initial; I am living in a lodge, which even my own subconscious mind could hardly have anticipated a few days ago. And I am warned of danger, on a morning when I feel that danger is, as Edith would say, my middle name.

According to the writer, she and the other sitter, who she naively explains was her fiance, received twice the name, William A. Potter. Assured then that they had it accurately, the "control" spelled out as follows:

"Advise you and Jane to go elsewhere. Lodge dangerous."

"It sounds, I admit, like a telegraphic message, with one word to spare. One rather looks for the word "love," so often added to get full value for one's money. But it is a definite warning for all that.

So the Lodge is dangerous, and Jane and I advised to go elsewhere. Heaven knows I'd like nothing better.

Our love story goes on, and I am as helpless there as in other directions; Edith proffering herself simply and sweetly, in a thousand small coquetries and as many unstudied allurements, and young Halliday gravely adoring her, and holding back.

Today, along with the rest of the summer colony, they made a pilgrimage in the car to the scenes of the various meadow tragedies, ending up with the stone altar, and I suspect matters came very nearly to a head between them, for Edith was very talkative on their return, and Halliday very quiet and a trifle pale.

And tonight, sitting on the veranda of the boat-house, while the boy set off Roman candles and sky-rockets over the water, Edith asked me how I thought she could earn some money.

"Earn money?" I said. "What on earth for? I've never known you to think about money before."

"Well, I'm thinking about it now," she said briefly, and relapsed into silence, from which she roused in a moment or so to state that money was a pest, and if she were making a world she'd have none in it.

I found my position slightly delicate, but I ventured to suggest that no man worth his salt would care to have his wife support him. She ignored that completely, however, and said she was thinking of writing a book. A book, she said, would bring in a great deal of money, and "nobody would need to worry about anything."

"And you could get it published, Father William," she said. "Everybody knows who you are. And you could correct the spelling, couldn't you? That's the only thing that's really worrying me."

And I honestly believe the child is trying it. Her light is still going tonight as I can see under her door.

July 5.

The sheriff has offered a thousand dollars reward for the apprehension and conviction of the sheepkiller. I understand Livingstone is privately offering another five hundred.

Mr. Bethel and his secretary arrive tomorrow, and the house is about ready for them. In spite of the fact that Annie Cochran moves about it, unoccupied as it is, like a scared rabbit, I shall see him at once on his arrival.

Halliday will finish the float today, and I understand intends then to start on the sloop. He has found a way to address me, instead of the formal "sir" of the first day or two, and now calls me Skipper.

Today, for the first time, I have taken him fully into my confidence. I had been half way debating it, but the matter of the dressing gown decided it.

(Note: I find that in the original Journal I made no note of this incident. The facts are as follows):

At Jane's suggestion I preceeded to the main house, to remove such of Uncle Horace's clothing as remained in the closets and so on to a trunk in the attic. Since the night of her experience in the pantry she had not entered the house. Armed with a package of moth preventive, I was on my way when I met Halliday, and he returned with me.

We worked quietly, for there is something depressing in the emptiness of such garments, and in their mute reminder that sooner or later we must all shed the clothing that we call the flesh.

I located the dressing gown which poor old Horace was wearing when he was found, and discovered that there were bloodstains on it near the hem.

"I'm going to ask you something," I said to Halliday. "A man dies of heart failure, and as he falls strikes his head, so that it bleeds. He lies there, from some time in the evening until seven o'clock in the morning. There wouldn't be much blood, would there?"

"Hardly any, I should say."

"And none in this location, I imagine."

I showed it to him, and he looked at me curiously.

"Im afraid I don't get it, Skipper," he said. "You mean, he moved, afterward?"

"If you want to know exactly what I mean, I believe the poor old chap was knocked down, that he got up and managed to dispose of something he had in his hand, something he didn't want seen, and that after that his heart failed."

He picked up the dressing gown and carried it to the window.

"Tell me about it," he said quietly.

As neither one of us knows anything about the heart, or what occurs when a fatal seizure attacks it, it is possible Halliday is right. That is, that feeling ill he got up, crumpled the letter in his hand, turned out the desk light, and then fell. But that he recovered himself and managed to drag himself to his feet again, when the full force of the seizure came, and he fell once more, not to rise.

"There is no real reason to believe that he was not alone," he said. "Nor even that he 'saw something,' as Mrs. Livingstone intimates."

But the letter I had found in the drawer interests him. He has made a copy of it, and taken it home to study.

"I appeal to you to consider the enormity of the idea. Your failure to comprehend my own attitude to it, however, makes me believe that you may be tempted to go on with it. In that case I shall feel it my duty, not only to go to the police but to warn society in general.

"I realize fully the unpleasantness of my own situation; even, if you are consistent, its danger. But—"

"But—what?" said Halliday. "'But I shall do what I have threatened, if you go on with it.'" He glanced up at me. "It doesn't sound like sheep-killing, does it?"

"No," I was obliged to admit. "It does not."

"Tell Me About It," He Said Quietly.

July 6.

I am in a fair way to go to jail if things keep on as they have been going! And not only for sheep-killing. If we have not had a tragedy here, certainly today there is every indication of it. And with the fatality which has attended me for the past week or so, I have managed to get myself involved in it.

Last night a youth named Carroway, sworn in by Starr a few days ago as deputy constable, was assigned the highroad behind our property as his beat. He was armed against the sheep-killer with a 30-30 Winchester, which was found this morning in the hedge not far from our gates.

Nothing is known of his movements from nine o'clock, when he went on duty, until a few minutes after midnight, when he appeared breathless on the town slip, minus his rifle, and jumping into a motor launch moored at the float, started off into the bay.

Peter Geiss, an old fisherman, was smoking his pipe on the slip at the time, but Peter is deaf, and although Carroway shouted something the old man did not hear it. There is, however, an intermediate clew here, for on his way Carroway had run into the Bennett house, and told the night clerk there to awaken Greenough and get him to our float; that the sheep-killer had taken a boat there and was somewhere out on the water.

The deputy's idea was probably to drive the fugitive back to the shore, and as there are, due to the marshes, but few landing places there, he seems so far as I can make out to have figured that the unknown would be forced back to our slip.

Greenough appears to have lost no time. He threw an overcoat over his pajamas, took his revolver, and commandeering a car in the street was on our pier before Carroway had been on the water ten minutes. And here, with that fatality which has recently pursued me, he found me returning from the float!

There are times when misfortune apparently picks up some hapless individual as her victim and, perhaps for the good of his soul, hammers him on this side and on that until he himself begins to think he has deserved it. He is guilty of something; he knows not what.

I was a guilty man as I faced Greenough! And yet the scene must have had its elements of humor. I, rather shaken already with the night air, my teeth rattling, and this ghostly figure suddenly appearing on the runway above me and turning my knees to water; a terror which only changed in quality when this ghost instructed me to put up my hands.

But I knew the voice, and I managed as debonair a manner as was possible under the circumstances.

"Nothing in them but a flash-light," I said. "However, if you insist—"

He seemed to hesitate. Then he laughed a little, not too pleasantly, and came down the runway to me.

"Out rather late, aren't you, Mr. Porter?" he asked.

It was my turn to hesitate.

"I came down to pull the canoe up onto the float," I said finally. "Mrs. Porter thought the sea was rising."

"Sounds quiet enough to me," he retorted and turning on his flash, he ran it over the surface of the water, which was as still as a mill-pond, and onto the canoe, which lay bottom-up and still dripping, on the float.

New One-Piece Grid Uniform

Charles Pieculewicz, varsity fullback of the Fordham university football team, wearing the new one-piece uniform and carrying the old-type suit in his hand. The jersey and the pants are not detachable and give an overall effect. It will be lighter to wear than the old uniform and greater speed is therefore anticipated among the backs.

It is more than likely that this new style of clothing will meet with much favor, especially by teams having games during sloppy weather, especially around Thanksgiving time. Anything to increase speed is wanted

Planning Present Day Forward Pass Offensive

"In planning a present day forward passing offensive, it is not only advisable to know the type of your opponents' defensive against pass tactics, but to know also your material at hand," writes Pat Page, football coach of Indiana, in an article in the Athletic Journal. "That is, first what kind of passers you have—long, short, or speedy? Have the receivers height, cleverness and speed? There are different ways to forward pass just as we have a variety of baseball pitching.

"Forward pass plays may be classed in three groups—out, down and over. The rules now state that the pass must be at least five yards back of the scrimmage line and may be caught by any man on the end of the line or by a back; thus six men are eligible to receive passes. Some coaches build their plays into certain territories or zones, while others play a man-to-man game, running free lance.

"Out passes, although used a great deal, are considered dangerous, especially in the bad lands, for if intercepted there is not much chance to recover them. Therefore, they should be used well down the field, have safety men and should be executed with speed. The forty-five degree angle pass is best handled by a couple of speedy backs. These men can fake their run and then pass or fake the pass and run."

Need Soil Doctors for Golf Courses

American golf courses need soil doctors and should look to agricultural colleges for such supply of specialists, in the opinion of Dr. M. M. McCool, head of the soils division of the Michigan State college.

The Michigan soils expert believes that the incorporation of golf course treatment in the extension programs of the agricultural colleges would be a progressive step toward better golf courses. He says there is an enormous waste in the initial laying out of a links and a loss in maintenance because of the slight knowledge of soil conditions.

Hornsby in Business

Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Boston Nationals, plans to enter the fancy live stock business when he retires from baseball, he revealed in a letter to J. W. Lipscomb, a friend. Hornsby asked Lipscomb to send several negroes to sod his 93-acre farm near St. Louis with blue grass. Explaining his plans, the baseball star said: "I want something to fall back on when I quit the diamond." It is believed that Hornsby will pay much attention to pure-bred cattle.

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice.

He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Secretary Knew How to Handle Balfour

In Paris during the peace conference, two young secretaries were conversing. This is what was overheard:

"Why don't you persuade your old man to get his hair cut?" said one. "He looks like the Old Man of the Sea."

"I know," said the other, "but he won't go to the barber's. I can't persuade him."

A pause. Then from the first speaker:

"I can."

The next day he approached Lord Balfour—the "old man" in question.

"Oh, sir," he said, "how like Mr. Lloyd George you look with your hair long like that!"

Balfour arose and went to the barber's shop on the spot.—Kansas City Star.

Acidity

The common cause of digestive difficulties is excess acid. Soda cannot alter this condition, and it burns the stomach. Something that will neutralize the acidity is the sensible thing to take. That is why physicians tell the public to use Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

One spoonful of this delightful preparation can neutralize many times its volume in acid. It acts instantly; relief is quick, and very apparent. All gas is dispelled; all sourness is soon gone; the whole system is sweetened. Do try this perfect anti-acid, and remember it is just as good for children, too, and pleasant for them to take.

Any drug store has the genuine, prescriptional product.

World's Sourest Substance

Vinegar is about five times more effective than lemon juice in making things sour, but a substance exists even sourer than vinegar. This is phosphoric acid, the active principle of the "acid phosphate" so much used in soda water flavors. This is the world's sourest known material.

Sharks Fight Fishers

Fleetwood, Eng.—While fishing for herring at grounds known as Klondyke, which lie between the north coast of Ireland and Barra Head, in the South Hebridean islands, a steam trawler had a thrilling fight with a shoal of sharks. The trawler concerned, the Castelnau of Boulogne, carries a crew of 22, in addition to a Fleetwood trawlerman, Skipper John Wright, who is sailing in the vessel as fishing pilot.

"During our voyage," Skipper Wright explained when the Castelnau returned to Fleetwood, "we came upon shoals of vicious sharks. There must have been 6,000 or 7,000 lashing the sea into foam for miles around. They completely surrounded our boat and bit huge holes in our net, and it was only with the utmost difficulty that we could haul it in. As night time approached we hove to and started sorting our catch and throwing smaller fish back into the sea.

Hocked 18 Sharks.

"The hungry sharks were on us immediately and we decided to clear the infested water as much as possible. We laid hooks on long poles which we suspended from the side of the ship, but the twine was not strong enough, and as the sharks grabbed the hooks with bait on they gave a violent lurch and carried the hooks and twine away with them.

"Our mascot kitten was unfortunately knocked overboard and, although it was only in the water a few seconds, a shark had bitten one of its legs off and we had to drown it on board to put an end to its misery. In the end we got 18 sharks on board, and we had to stand clear. They were lashing about the deck so fiercely that it would have been fatal to have approached them.

Drowned One by One.

"Finally we lassoed each one and suspended them from the ship, head downwards in the sea, and thus drowned them one by one. During our homeward voyage the Frenchmen reveled in shark steaks and the French skipper invited me to have some, but I told him I did not want any.

"The skipper then told me to have beefsteak and chips, but the beefsteak turned out to be shark steak, and I could not discern any difference in taste. In France shark steak is worth four or five francs a pound, but in England they find their way to fishmeal works."

Learns About Harem

Constantinople.—An American woman, the first foreigner whom the Ottoman government permitted to enter the harem of Seraglio palace, has just completed an exhaustive study of that mysterious labyrinth.

She is Dr. Barnette Miller, head of the history department of Wellesley college, who returned to Stamboul this year to complete the investigations she began in 1907. Aided by a young Turkish girl, Mebrouke Hanem, a member of the staff of Constantinople College for Women, Doctor Miller is the first American to delve deeply into the shadowy history of the vast 500-year-old palace where Turkish padishahs and sultans and their hundreds and thousands of slaves lived hidden lives.

The American investigator discovered in her prowlings through the palace that there existed one peephole by which the women of the harem could look upon men other than their sultanic master and their guardian eunuchs. High in the wall of the palace mosque where the sultan and his masculine followers worshiped, Doctor Miller found a tiny window covered with a golden lattice and discovered that this window connected with the room in the harem where the women gathered to pray.

During her final investigations this year Doctor Miller was given permission by the new republican Turkish authorities to enter every one of the hundreds of palace rooms save one. No human except the sultans, not even the sultan-smiting, religion-defying Mustapha Kemal, has ever entered that sanctum sanctorum where the beard of the Prophet reposes. Outside the heavily barred window of that room 40 turbaned priests, in groups of four, chant prayers from the Koran day and night, year after year, century after century.

Self-Aiming Plane Gun Invented by Esthonian

Tallinn, Esthonia.—The Esthonia inventor, Karl Papello, has perfected a mechanism for airplanes which he claims will be able to locate the direction and position of other planes by their sound and fire a machine gun automatically.

This invention has attracted the notice of the British air ministry, it is reported here, and Papello is expecting an order from the British government. Papello spent eight months in British military schools and was invited to go on a lecture tour there last year.

HANDICAPS

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK
Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

I have thought sometimes that maybe the mountains which loomed up as a barrier before the eyes of the first settlers in this country were a challenge rather than a discouragment as they pushed their way westward first beyond the Alleghanies and then, as the challenge flung itself into their faces still more arrogantly, to the Pacific coast. The thought of conquering the heights stirred their blood, fired their curiosity and their pride, became in time an adventure. So, too, I have been sure at times that what at first sight seemed a physical or a mental barrier to success has acted only as an incentive to greater effort on the part of the young person upon whom the handicap has been laid.

Four years ago I had a letter from a boy in a country town in southern Illinois. He was just graduating from high school and was hesitating about trying to go further with his education. A nervous disease had seemed to put up for him an almost insuperable barrier. He walked with difficulty; his speech was halting and sometimes almost unintelligible; and he was sensitive as to his physical deficiencies. I had known another boy much like him, however, who had overcome his handicaps and had done well as a free lance writer, and I said so.

I met the boy a few weeks ago. He has graduated from a neighboring college, he has made honors, for him the handicap has proved only the challenge of the mountains which he has climbed.

A classmate of mine was almost blind. He could see objects only by getting his face close to them, yet he wanted to be a chemist. He went ahead as if there was nothing the matter. He used to go about the laboratory with the utmost nonchalance, sticking his face down into the mixtures which were brewing. He seemed never to have an explosion; nothing ever went wrong as far as we knew. He came to ignore the handicap, he received the degree of doctor of science in chemistry from an eastern institution, and is today one of the well-known commercial chemists of the country. Most people would have said at once that the thing which he accomplished was quite an impossible thing.

I had a letter from Ellis a few days ago. He has been blind from birth, but he has managed, without money and sightless as he is, to graduate from college, and now he has come up for an advanced degree and is going to teach in a recognized college. He is as cheerful as if he had his eyesight. One of the men who graduated from our college of engineering two years ago had been stone deaf since childhood. All the instruction he got was what he could pick up from reading the lips of his instructors. Yet he won honors in his engineering course; he was one of the most cheerful, happy boys whom I have ever known.

I sometimes think that a handicap is for many people a blessing in disguise.

World's Tallest Building Is Planned for Chicago

Chicago.—Chicago gave birth to the skyscraper and now it is to regain the honor of having the tallest building in the world.

The Chicago Tower, which has been announced for construction in February, will rise 880 feet above the street level of Wacker drive, exceeding the height of the Woolworth building by 88 feet.

The Chicago Tower will have a gross floor area of 5,097,778 square feet which will make it the largest building in the world.

Nine classes of tenancy will be included in the new building. Besides a 75 story office building the skyscraper will house the Chicago Apparel Mart, a 440-room hotel, a 25-story garage, two clubs and two convention halls.

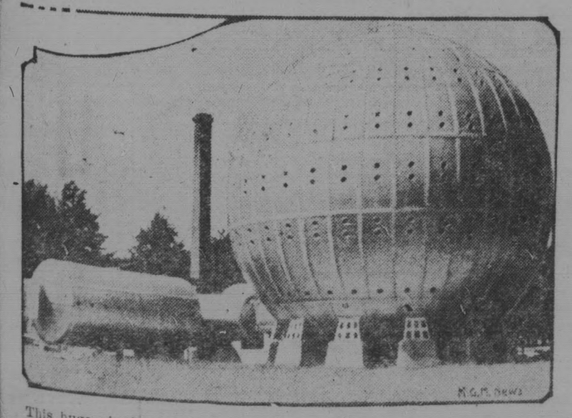
The building will be erected on air rights over the Illinois Central railroad tracks and its estimated cost is $45,000,000.

Walter W. Ahlschlager is the architect for the Chicago Tower.

Father Sage Says:

The meaning of the abbreviation "Dr." depends entirely upon whether it is placed before or after a man's name.

Innovation in Medical Science



This huge air-tight globe has been built in Cleveland, Ohio, for patients who live there under a constant pressure of 30 pounds to the square inch. The globe, which is of steel, weighs 280 tons, has five floors and an automatic elevator. This is an innovation in the field of science and medicine.

DIPPING INTO SCIENCE

Country Vs. City Air

Why is the country air purer than that in the city? Aside from dust, smoke and gases, city air is less pure because of the lack of foliage and because of the greater number of people. Foliage absorbs carbonic acid gas and gives back oxygen to the atmosphere. On the other hand human beings do just the opposite.

Heart Stops Beating but He Isn't Dead

Warsaw, Poland.—Medical circles are greatly interested in reports from the village of Sieniakonie, in the Vilna district, of a man whose heart action apparently has ceased but who still retains normal body temperature.

The man, Adam Woynisz, was struck by lightning and was considered dead. Shortly before his funeral his coffin was opened on his mother's wish and the man was found in what appeared a deep coma.

To Save Forests

Edmonton, Alta.—A tree-planting car, operated by the Canadian Forestry association, has just returned from the West and left for Peace river following a two months' trip over the lines of the Canadian National railways between Edmonton and Prince Rupert.

By the operation of the car the dominion government hopes to achieve direction of reforestation of burnt-over areas and at the same time to instruct townspeople, and others in more remote communities, in the care and protection of their forests.

The line of the Canadian National westward from Edmonton to the Pacific port of Prince Rupert, runs through heavily wood territory, threading its way along the Fraser, the Bulkley and the Skeena rivers.

This is a country which owes its beauty as much to the heavy green forests which cover it as to the mountains with which it is hemmed. The increasing tourist traffic, coupled with lumbering and ranching activities, renders fire a real peril.

During their stay in British Columbia, the complement of the forestry car, accompanied lately by George Harcourt, representing the University of Alberta, held 351 meetings in the interests of forestry preservation. It is estimated that 60,000 persons attended these gatherings.

The distribution of placards took place at key points. These signs, bearing a brief conservation message, posted at cross roads, along the highways and the trails, present a pertinent message to the passer-by.

Wife Sues Poker Club for Husband's Losses

Washington.—The Supreme court was asked to decide whether clubs are liable for damages to wives for depriving them of the companionship of their husband's income.

The case came from McGill, White Pine county, Nev., and was brought by Mrs. Gladys Anderson against the McGill club where she asserted her husband played poker.

She declared in her suit that her husband spent much of his time at the club and lost a large portion of his salary, causing her "worry, humiliation, sickness and grievous mental pain." She insisted in her complaint that the club, as a public nuisance, was liable to her for damages.

The state courts dismissed the suit, however, holding that there was no provision in law warranting action against a club on such grounds. Mrs. Anderson would have the Supreme court reverse this decision.

Scientists Hunt Poison to Kill Coddling Moth

Yakima, Wash.—Field laboratories have been opened here and at Wenatchee by the Department of Agriculture in an effort to develop a poison that will be superior to the lead-arsenate spray which at present is the only effective method of combating the coddling moth, an insect that causes huge losses to apple and pear growers.

Local orchardists are co-operating. They desire a poison that while deadly to the moth will be harmless to humans and which will not require a wash or other treatment that will shorten the life of the apple when in storage.

Small Boys Loyal to Favorite Film Hero

A few weeks ago fire started in the projection room of a moving picture theater in Hartford, Conn. Cautious patrons sought the nearest exits, and firemen from three companies dashed in prepared, as always, to do or die.

A half hour later, the fire extinguished, the show went on. Had the audience stayed through the excitement and the supposed danger? The adults hadn't, but the small boys who filled the gallery when the fire began were still there when the picture was resumed. It was a "Western," of course; a rip-roaring, hard-shooting "Western" with muscular hero, incredibly intelligent horse, sneering villain and golden heroine. It was, as Stevenson said of "Treasure Island," "all the old romance retold exactly in the ancient way."

They loved it so well that danger could not drive them away. What would Tom Mix say if he saw a fellow run from a little fire? Stick it out, pard!

Letters have been mailed to each Republican among the women with the hope that every woman may feel enthusiastic enough about Mr. Hoover to vote early on election day and to contribute one dollar or more toward making his election possible.

Outlying sections must be reached and mailing expenses must be covered. If anyone interested in this campaign has not received a letter or if anyone has not yet contributed, the committee will gladly mail any information desired or receive checks and money at any time. Checks should be made payable to Mrs. Joseph D. Grant and mailed to Mrs. Stewart Elliott in Woodside.

To those who have already contributed, the committee sends its thanks and sincere appreciation. According to one member of the committee,

"There's little time left for what we intend to do,
Let us decide quickly and carry thru."

The committee consists of Mrs. Selah Chamberlain, Mrs. Stewart Elliott, Mrs. John D. Gish, Mrs. Lawrence Harris, Miss May Huddart, Miss Marjorie Josselyn, Mrs. Nathaniel Messer, Mrs. A. D. McBryde, Mrs. J. V. Neuman, Mrs. Samuel Pond and Mrs. Russell Slade.

The Woodside Girl Scouts were entertained on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. George Givens.

The monthly card party of the Parent-Teacher Association will be held on Saturday night, October 13th and will be in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Johns.

The christening of the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Dibble Jr. took place on Sunda afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Church of Our Lady of the Wayside at Portola. The Rev. Father O'Keefe performed the ceremony and the baby was named David Van Vlack Dibble.

Following the christening, Mr. and Mrs. Dibble gave a tea at their home here where they are spending the winter.

The football teams of the Woodside and Portola schools will meet in competition upon the local gridiron on Wednesday afternoon next.

Ever Notice the Back of Your Neck?

YOU can't tell how badly you need a hair cut just by looking in the mirror front-faced it's the back of your head that tells the story. That's why we say: "If you saw the back of your neck as often as the rest of the world does, you'd never forget that haircut every ten days."

And here's a tip:—the next time you get a haircut in our super-service shop, ask for an application of Fitch's La Poma hair-dressing afterward. We know of nothing so excellent for allaying the hair to lie smooth and nothing else which increases its gloss so amazingly. How about doing it today?
